What one variety of recent congressional criticism — that Fulbright is too sparing — after Johnson's decision to add new targets could not be determined as the White House fended off questions on the shift in tactics.

But it was learned that Sen. Fulbright's subcommittee heard secret testimony last week from Adm. Ulysses S. G. Sharp, Pacific commander, that Johnson had agreed to some extension of warplanes' options to strike what one subcommittee member called "lucrative targets."

Strikes Sunday against North Vietnamese rail yards 10 miles from Red China and Friday against Hanoi's Doumer bridge came after Johnson lifted temporarily two major target restrictions.

Pentagon sources say the administration will continue those restrictions except on certain key, vital missions. The restricted areas are a 30-mile diameter circle around Hanoi, penetrated two or three times previously, and a 15-to-20-mile-wide buffer zone along the North Vietnam-Red China boundary.

Fulbright said the bombing near Red China "is directly contrary to what was the established policy of the government in 1964 and it will lead the country directly into the most disastrous consequences."

Fulbright's committee, including members already troubled over Vietnam, cut Johnson's $3.4 billion foreign aid request by $736 million.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, a foe of increased bombing, said he hopes to hold the line against further cuts in the bill but added: "I expect it will be tough going."

He told a newsman he expects "all kinds of amendments to be offered."

The Senate warmed up to its latest Vietnam tussle Friday when a battery of members questioned how fairly the South Vietnamese elections will be run.

Clark Clifford, a Johnson emissary, said Sunday he gave South Vietnamese leaders earlier this month the President's warning a rigged presidential election would cost South Vietnam the support of the American people.

He and Gen. Maxwell Taylor visited South Vietnam chief of state Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, a candidate for president, and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, Thieu's running mate for vice president.

"We took a personal message from President Johnson to Ky and Thieu on this subject and said, as bluntly as it can be said, that if there was any one act on their part which would be calculated to alienate the American people, it would be to have a rigged election in South Vietnam," said Clifford.

He added: "It is my private view that they will do all in their power to make them fair and honest elections, because I think they understand very clearly the result that will take place in this country in the loss of support for South Vietnam if they are not that way."

Taylor said everything he saw "indicates that the government is insistent on an honest election. They are making every effort, under the conditions of war, to obtain conditions where campaigning is possible and with a maximum participation of the voters."

Earthquakes Rock Areas in France

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — Earthquakes rocked southwestern France and northern Spain Sunday, devastating one French village and felling scattered buildings elsewhere. One death was reported.

In Arette, France, an 80-year-old woman was crushed to death when her house came tumbling down.

The Pyrenees Mountain village, population 1,000, was badly hit by the quick tremors, and its residents abandoned their homes to spend the night in cars or huddled around campfires.

Four persons were injured in the Arette quakes. Walls collapsed in Montory, France, and many slight injuries were reported.

Council of Economic Advisers were assigned to the opening presentation today before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Johnson, in a series of sessions with House Democrats, has laid out the main lines of the administration argument — a deficit possibly approaching $30 billion would mean inflation, higher interest rates, scarce money for the small business and individual borrower, and, quite likely, disaster for the homebuilding industry.

The opposing argument is that the economy is not so strong but that a burden of the magnitude of the proposed tax increase might depress it — and actually reduce instead of increasing the government's revenues.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee expressed a widespread congressional feeling when he said, "I am absolutely uncommitted."

Mills added Sunday the proposal "certainly faces a very difficult uphill battle" and he sees no congressional or taxpayer enthusiasm for any tax increase.

Mills called the proposal "about the toughest proposition" Johnson has faced in the field of legislation.

But Fowler said Sunday he believes there will be no need for compromise on the plan once Mills' committee "is fully confronted with the alternatives."

Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., said he believes if a surtax is voted, it is likely to be six or seven per cent instead of 10 per cent. He said he thinks Johnson has only a 50-50 chance of getting any surtax approved by Congress.

Mills spoke on a radio-television broadcast in New York State, Fowler on ABC's "Issues and Answers" and Morton on Metromedia's "Opinion: Washington."

Johnson made one move Saturday to demonstrate his stated intention to hold down some types of government spending. He vetoed a bill that would have provided more life insurance coverage for 2.5 million federal employees and would have cost $61 million the first year.

He also told Congress not to go beyond a 4.5 per cent increase he has recommended in federal pay.

The President said the insurance bill would cost too much when there are more crucial needs for federal funds — help for "children, the poor, the elderly — and most important, American fighting men in Vietnam."

Johnson had proposed an insurance revision costing $13 million. The Congress-approved measure would have increased the federal share of insurance premiums for government workers from one-third to two-fifths, and would have increased coverage by up to 100 per cent.

His pay raise warning was aimed at pending congressional moves to add an extra $1 billion to his recommendation. He said that would equal a two per cent tax surcharge.

Administration spokesmen got last-minute help from a series of favorable economic developments tending to support government predictions the economy would be strong enough through 1967 to support a tax increase.

If the Ways and Means Committee runs true to form, it will at least modify the administration proposal. Strong sentiment was reported for giving individual taxpayers a better break than corporations — especially since business was helped this year by restoration of the investment credit that permits recovery of 7 per cent of spending on equipment.

JAMES GRIFFIN

MAGNOLIA — James Robert Griffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Griffin of Rt. 1, Fulton, will be a candidate for the Bachelor of Science degree at commencement services Friday, Aug. 11, at Southern State College, according to James L. Smyth, registrar.

Griffin is a graduate of Guernsey High School and a senior mathematics major at Southern State, where he has served as president of the Baptist Student Union, member of the Religious Council and Student Senate. He was also a member of the championship intramural basketball team of Holt Hall in 1965. Griffin is planning a career in industry in the field of mathematics after graduation.

Group Favors Turnpike Proposal

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Interstate Highway 29 Extension Association is "willing and able to guarantee the cost of an engineering study" of an interstate route through Central Arkansas, according to the chairman of the organization.

Richard C. Butler, the association chairman, made the statement in a letter to Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller.

Proponents of a turnpike through Western Arkansas have given the Arkansas Turnpike Authority a check for $40,000 to finance a study of a turnpike through the western part of the state.

The Interstate 29 Association favors a turnpike from Kansas City to New Orleans through Harrison, Little Rock and El Dorado.

The Turnpike Authority and the state Highway Commission have agreed to a feasibility study of several proposed turnpike routes.

armed with riot guns guarded the Negro marchers who camped for the night at a school.

Streets of Hammond were deserted in the predawn hours, but the atmosphere was taut. Bank indicated he would try to escort the marchers out of the area before their scheduled 10 a.m. departure.

About 100 marchers slept in the ballpark of Greenville Park High School, a Negro school, inside a ring of cars drawn together like covered wagons of the Old West. Arc lights illuminated the area.

Shortly before dawn, all but 20 left in cars for Bogalusa. Young said those who remained would continue the trek.

White witnesses to the shooting said there was a racial brawl at the combination bar and service station, the Riverside Inn, earlier in the evening. They said a Negro who was refused service cursed and struck a white man and was beaten and kicked unconscious.

Sheriff Sanders said 11 Negroes later returned to the bar, demanding beer.

They were told they would be served outside, he said.

When several whites blocked the door, said Sanders, one Negroes opened fire, then fled to two cars. Sanders said the Negroes had two pistols and a shotgun.

Shortly after, a crowd of furious whites gathered at the Inn. Some were armed. A sheriff's deputy said he persuaded them to go home.

Officers found two abandoned autos, believed used by the Negroes, and discovered a revolver, a 22-caliber automatic pistol and a sawed-off shotgun inside.

State troopers arrested a Negro girl near the scene of the shooting. She told officers she got out of the car before the Negroes went to the bar because she didn't want to be involved. Troopers said she identified all of the assailants.

Authority Given to Curb Riots

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Mayors in Russellville, Walnut Ridge, Springdale and Mountain View now have the authority to impose curfews in the event of riots, civil disturbances, insurrections or local disasters.

Glenn G. Zimmerman, executive director of the Arkansas Municipal League, said Saturday that the four cities had adopted ordinances giving their mayors the authority to impose

Zimmerman said a mayor couldn't extend the curfew beyond 48 hours without the consent of a majority of his city's governing body, although the mayors can impose the curfew initially on their own judgment. Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — F. Lee Bailey, the defense counsel and television star-to-be, went calling on his first celebrities Thursday and while his company may have been good, it was also large.

Bailey—who has dropped the "F." for show biz purposes—was taping his first "Good Company" program for the new ABC series, and was received by the Tony Curtis at their magnificent and manicured Holmby Hills residence.

Members of Bailey's entourage started arriving at the $800,000, five-acre, walled estate shortly after 7 a.m. Trucks, portable sound studios, miles of electric cable and some 55 technicians, cameramen and even uniformed guards scattered around the 17-room house, around the formal gardens.

At 2 p.m., Bailey was making his first on-camera appearance—driving a yellow convertible through the gates, and sweeping up to the formal facade of the huge Mediterranean-style mansion built 30 years ago.

Then there was a length pause for adjustments to the six color cameras and to the lighting.

Curtis, in slacks and sports jacket, and smoking a fat cigar, stood around patiently waiting to be filmed greeting his guest. He chatted with "Good Company" producer John Aaron.

Mrs. Curtis, formerly actress Christine Kaufmann, appeared in white lace slacks and jacket over a body stocking, and stayed at one side of the house by the children's playground. Their two youngsters ignored the mob and amused themselves under the watchful eyes of their nurse.

The busy scene looked like a well-organized location filming by a movie company—except that there seemed to be an inordinately large number of press agents around: the Curtises' press agent, press agents for "Good Company" and ABC press agents.

Inside the house cables snaked from drawing room to breakfast room to den to formal dining room. The paneled walls were covered with oils and watercolors—the Curtis collection—for Tony to describe.

It was all well organized and, since Bailey and the Curtises had done several run-throughs of the house tour, was going with unexpected smoothness.

But it was a long day for the Curtis family: It was after 8 p.m. before the last cable was back in its truck, the last camera rolled away.

The visit to the film star's home has been chosen—pretty shrewdly, too—as the opening show on Sept. 7 of the series which is closely patterned after the old "Person-to-Person" shows. Everybody likes to see how rich movie stars live, and the Curtises' millionaire style and general opulence can not disappoint the fans.

Bailey flies East today in his private plane—and next week will drop in on another celebrity, Everett M. Dirksen, the senator and recording star.

Labor Strikes

Common Now
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Labor strikes surprised this Communist country at first, but now they have become accepted as a normal means for workers to try to improve their conditions, the Belgrade newspaper Borba said Sunday.

It urged trade unions and Communists to improve wages, social status and working conditions so "the very notion of the strike would be alien to workers."

Thinks British Need More Spirit

LONDON (AP) — In something like the decline and fall of the Roman Empire, Britain is dying for lack of cause, poverty of spirit and inferior lives now that it is less important in world affairs, an Anglican churchman says.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
LONDON (AP) — "The difference between us is that the American censor is concerned with moralities, while I am not. I am merely an assessor of public attitudes."

British film censor John Trevelyan was explaining his work while enjoying an end-of-the-day Scotch in his office at 2 Soho Square, in the heart of Film Row. Thrice-married, with twin sons of 8 by his most recent marriage, he is a balding man of 63 with an engaging frankness. His background is education, but his interest in films led him to join the British Board of Film Censorship in 1950.

The disparity between American and British censorship is curious. The Hollywood Production Code, long influenced by pressures of the Catholic Church, is primarily concerned with sex and morality.

"That is not so much an issue here," declared Trevelyan. "I think the sex comedies of Hollywood are absolutely adolescent in their outlook. I much prefer a straightforward attitude toward sex. That's the way I would like my children to learn about it."

"As a matter of fact, I believe kids are being so plugged by sex in films, in ads and in magazines that they are losing interest in sex."

The main concern of the British censor over the years has been violence.

"We've had outbreaks of juvenile violence, and we are very edgy about allowing anything that might encourage it," said Trevelyan.

"The Brando film, 'The Wild One,' has never been allowed in this country, nor has 'Key Witness.' I banned 'Lady in the Cage,' but the London Council overruled me and allowed it to be shown."

"I turned down the Roger Corman film, 'Wild Angel,' which I believed was very dangerous. To check my opinion, I showed it to a psychiatrist who happens to be anticensorship. He agreed with me for two reasons: that we have no patterns of juvenile gangs here; and we have had no antireligious damage, as was depicted in the picture."

British censorship predates the American system by more than 15 years. City councils here were given censorship powers under a 1909 act largely concerned with fires in theaters. In 1913, the British film industry set up the censor board, which actually has no legal power.

Most of the 700 municipalities go along with the board's rulings, although appeals can be made to the councils. London recently overruled Trevelyan's ban of "Ulysses," but other cities have upheld him.

The British censor classifies films in three categories:

U—For universal exhibition to all ages.

A—For no persons under 16 unless accompanied by an adult.

X—No persons under 16 under any circumstances.

The categories are listed in newspaper ads and in front of the theater. Trevelyan said theater managers enforce the classifications fairly well. But in mod London it is hard to tell which children are over 16, and those who are under often ask an adult patron to adopt them until they get past the ticket taker.

British censorship holds that children should not be frightened. Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was denied a U rating until some of the witch's scenes were excised.

accept that it is no longer the great power in worldly terms that it used to be and does not seem to be seriously asking itself the question where its true future lies," Canon Douglas Rhymes said in a sermon.

TRIES TO AVOID "NEIGHBOR"

Dear Helen: We're new here and my neighbor has me so upset that I've gone back to work just to avoid her. But she makes up for it on weekends.

She talks incessantly about the other neighbors: what awful housekeepers they are, how lazy. I have seen her come into a home and move lamps or chairs where she thinks they should be. She thinks she has exceptional taste in arrangements.

Everything she has is "expensive," and she tells you about it, implying what you have come from a garage sale.

She will donate outgrown clothes to friends and then embarrass them by telling everyone about it. She quotes Emily Post, Webster and House Beautiful verbatim when someone else pulls a blooper. But she thinks nothing of criticizing the food you serve.

She asks you to grocery shop for her, then rewards you with, "The vegetables were half rotten, and I'd NEVER buy that kind of meat!"

Everyone else has sobs for friends and relatives, but hers are uppercut.

I could go on and on but I'd be sounding much like she sounds to me.

I neither agree with her or disagree, as I'd like to remain friendly with my neighbors, but I can't take much more of this. Suggestions? LADY NEXT DOOR

Dear Lady: With a friend like this, who needs arsenic?

You can be sure Mrs. Poison-Tongue has latched on to you because others won't listen. Do her a favor and tell her why. You can't lose, for you'll either make a new woman of her, or get rid of a pest.—H.

Dear Helen: Maybe you won't print this, but I'll bet many are in my same position. My husband was what they call a "broken arrow" when he was in the army. He neglected me and the children, seldom wrote. When he came home after two years, everything was wrong with our once stable marriage.

Two months ago I discovered he had contracted VD several times and was not sure he was entirely cured when he came home. He said he'd been unfaithful from two weeks after he got there. That explains why he wouldn't let me join him overseas. He was at a good duty station and in no danger.

I was put through embarrassment of lab tests and questions, which added to my hurt and snob.

He thinks I'm upset over "nothing," as "all the fellows played around, and it didn't mean anything, so how could it be called unfaithful?" His philosophy is, "You're not the only wife who has been cheated on." Yet if the situation had been reversed he'd have kicked me out.

I can't adjust, Helen. I can't stand to have him near me. I don't trust or respect him, and I'm full of bitterness. I'm a warm myself attractive, but my pride is gone.

Should I get a job and leave him, or stay and risk a nervous breakdown?—SICK INSIDE

Dear S.I.: Feeling as you do,

LITTLE REFUGEE at Pailumur, Turkey, finds little to smile about after earthquakes hit her area recently. Thousands of persons in that nation refused to return to their homes after the series of quakes, afraid of being trapped or buried in case the earth trembled again. Instead, they preferred to live in the open, even if their homes were still intact.

Cubs Take Pair Over the Phillies

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Over in Vietnam, somebody will undoubtedly be glad that Ken Holtzman gave a couple of pints of blood last week. Back in Philadelphia, they may wish he wasn't all that civic-minded.

Holtzman, on his first pass from the Army in nearly three months, pitched well enough for 5-1-3 innings for the Chicago Cubs to beat the Phillies 6-2. They took the nightcap, too, 2-1 behind Ferguson Jenkins.

Holtzman, who went into the Army for six months with a 5-0 record on May 20, hopes to make his weekend pitching a regular thing now that he's out of basic training and learning to be a combat medic at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

"I won't know until Friday if I'm going to get a pass," he said. "This weekend I got one by giving two pints of blood. I've got enough left if they say give some more, but I'm not doing it just to get a pass. It goes to Vietnam, I know how much it's needed."

Maybe it was the long layoff or maybe the missing blood, but Holtzman says he began to tire in the fifth and Manager Leo Durocher took the 21-year-old lefty out, though he gave up just four hits, striking out four and walking two.

Bill Stoneman finished up and Ron Santo's 25th homer sparked a three-run fourth inning. Jenkins stopped the Phils on four hits in the second game, winning his 16th game, and Don Kessinger drove in the only run of the game.

In other National League contests Sunday, New York swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 3-0 and 11-9. Cincinnati shut out Los Angeles 3-0. St. Louis edged San Francisco 2-1 and Atlanta crushed Houston 8-4.

In the American League, Minnesota edged Chicago 3-2. Detroit nipped Baltimore 3-2. New York outgouted Cleveland 15-1. California edged Boston 3-2 and Washington blanked Kansas City 2-0.

Holtzman admitted he "felt a little like a rookie again" when he faced his first major league batter in 85 days, but added, "once I started throwing I had no flutters."

Tom Seaver threw a four-hit shutout in the first game for the Mets, who scored three times in the eighth inning to beat the Pirates. Ed Kranepool's two-out single drove in the only run New York needed.

In the second game, the Pirates took an 8-6 lead into the eighth, but the Mets fought back for five runs from two singles, a sacrifice fly and a force out. Ron Swoboda homered for New York and Willie Stargell and Bob Rodgers connected for the Pirates.

Sammy Ellis made it two shutouts in a row for the Reds over the Dodgers, stopping Los Angeles on three hits. Lee May

Minnesota Fights to A Loop Lead

Eddie Stanky must have thought it was all a bad dream. Here was Minnesota tip-toeing away with the American League lead and using a pitch and putt attack more characteristic of Stanky's Chicago White Sox to hit a two-run homer for Cincinnati. Saturday, Milt Pappas blanked the Dodgers on six hits. The Cardinals scored both their runs in the third inning on a walk, a single by Lou Brock and a double by Alex Johnson. Dick Hughes, with relief help from Joe Hoerner, was the Sox winner. Willie McCovey tripled in the fourth for the Giants and scored on Jim Hart's single.

Rico Carty, Mack Jones and Hank Aaron hit homers for the Braves who won their fifth consecutive game as the Astros dropped their 10th straight and fell into the National League cellar.

Ryun Shows Heels to Best of Britain

By RODNEY PINDER
LONDON (AP) — American track artist Jim Ryun flew out of England today leaving British sporting circles a picture of impending national disaster at next year's Olympic Games.

The 20-year-old speedster from Wichita, Kan., strolled a mile round the celebrated White City track Saturday, leaving Kenyan distance ace Kip Keino galloping yards behind and Britain's best gasping in their down-draught.

In a race billed as the Mile of the Century, world record holder Ryun turned in an effortless 3:56.0, well outside his best of 3:51.1. The Kenyan policeman was 1.4 seconds behind.

Britain's toiling Alan Simpson was clocked in 4:00.4 for third on a dull, windy day. The United States walloped the British 139-84 and one sports writer said today that it reminded him of an old movie featuring "clowns going backward."

Ryun said Saturday the mile was his last of the season. He left with the U.S. team for Düsseldorf, Germany, today for a two-day meet against West Germany Wednesday and Thursday.

"I may run the 1,500 meters in Düsseldorf and the 5,000 meters in Italy," he said. The team visits Italy and Spain for meets Saturday and Sunday.

British sports writers blamed fatalism among the nation's top track stars and lethargy among its controlling officials for the disappointing result. They called for a shakeup of both to avoid humiliation in Mexico.

Roger Bannister, the first runner in the world to break the four-minute mile barrier, declared as he watched the mile finish: "This is really too bad. The fellow looks scarcely out of breath. When I scraped through I cannot remember finishing."

Fights Last Night

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
BUENOS AIRES — Horacio Accavallo, 111½, Argentina, outpointed Hiroyuki Ebihara, 112 Japan, 15. Accavallo retained world flyweight title.

MALMOE, Sweden — Bob Hoegberg, 157½, Sweden, outpointed Gordon Lott, 155, Savannah, Ga., 10; Tom Bogs, 165, Denmark, outpointed Millo Calhoun, 163, Britain, 10.

So, with first place slowly drifting away, Stanky decided to put up a fight. And all that strategy got him was an early show-er. About two outs early.

The Twins were nursing a 3-2 lead built on a Chicago-type rally of two singles, a double steal, an intentional walk, and a force play. When Tommie Agee opened the ninth with a long double, Stanky thought he was back in business.

But Agee, trying to stretch his hit, was thrown out at third on a close play. Stanky rushed umpire Bill Valentine, tossed his cap, jawed nose to nose and was invited to leave early. Two outs later, the rest of the White Sox followed.

The 3-2 victory moved the Twins into the league lead, ½ game in front of Chicago. Detroit, which beat Baltimore 3-2, is third, one game back. California took fourth place, 1½ games behind, by beating Boston 3-2. The Red Sox are fifth, 2½ games out.

In other American League games, New York outsluged Cleveland 15-11 and Washington blanked Kansas City 2-0.

In the National League, Cincinnati topped Los Angeles 3-0. St. Louis shaded San Francisco 2-1. Atlanta dropped Houston 8-4. New York swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 3-0 and 11-9 and Chicago took a pair from Philadelphia 6-2 and 1-0.

The Twins' victory was their fourth straight and completed an 8-2 home stand. "Now we've got to have a good road trip to make it stick," said Manager Cal Ermer.

Stanky locked the clubhouse door for 30 minutes after the game and wouldn't discuss the play at third base on Agee. "We got beat 3-2," he said. "That's all I've got to say."

The Twins pushed the winning run across in the eighth. Cesar Tovar and Tony Oliva opened with singles and worked the double steal after Harmon Killebrew struck out.

Bob Allison was intentionally walked and then Don Buford deflected Rich Rollins' bouncer to Ron Hansen, who forced Killebrew at second as Tovar scored.

Rollins drove in all three Minnesota runs and Agee homered for the White Sox.

Detroit got a three-run homer from light-hitting Ray Oyler to beat the Orioles. Oyler, batting .206, tagged his first homer of the season in the second inning after Al Kaline doubled and Jim Price walked.

Paul Blair and Curt Blefary touched winner Earl Wilson, 16-9, for homers. Rookie Fred Lasher finished up for the Tigers.

California won its fourth straight, with home runs by Jose Cardenal and Roger Repose the big blows. Cardenal's inside-the-park shot led off the game for the Angels and Repose connected against loser Jim Lonborg, 16-6 in the second inning.

Rico Petrocelli had a two-run shot for Boston with two out in the ninth, but Bill Kelsos, the third Angel pitcher, came on to get the final out.

Bob Tillman drove in six runs — three on a ninth inning homer — and Horace Clarke and Ruben Amaro smacked four hits apiece as the Yankees beat the Indians. Max Alvis rapped a pair of home runs for Cleveland.

Frank Bertalina pitched a five-hitter as the Senators reached .500 again by beating the Athletics. Rick Monday's second inning error and singles by Bernie Allen and Ed Benkman, provided all the runs Bertalina needed. The Senators, in sixth place, are only six games behind the league leading Twins, and how's that for a pennant race?

Stan Parris Outstanding Player

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The aerial antics of Darrell Hatchett and Keith French may have overshadowed the East's raging defense, but the statistics indicate both were equally effective in the East's 28-12 victory over the West in the High School All-Star football game Saturday night.

It was the East's sixth straight victory.

Hatchett completed 15 of 28 passes for 240 yards and one touchdown. His passing set up two other touchdowns. French, who played in white tennis shoes instead of the conventional football shoes, grabbed nine passes for 151 yards and a touchdown.

French's yardage on pass receptions outstripped the West's total offense for the night. The West wound up with 120 yards total offense, including 115 in the air. Most of that 115 came on an 83-yard touchdown pass from Fayetteville's Mark Thompson to Hope's Stan Parris.

Parris, who was voted the outstanding lineman in the game, also returned a punt 36 yards for the other West touchdown.

The East's defense was not a one-man gang, but Newport linebacker Mike Payne and Little Rock Catholic tackle Roger Harnish were instrumental.

The East, which wound up with more than 450 yards total offense, pounded out 24 first downs to the West's five. To make things worse, one of the West's came on a penalty, another on the last play of the game where a guard wound up carrying the ball, and another on the long pass to Parris.

The West's first unit did not make a first down in the second half against the East's first team until the last play of the third period.

Benton's Jerry Moore guided the East 51 yards to a score on its first possession. He hit three straight passes including a 20-yarder to Parris's Bobby Bowers for the six points. Hazen's Dickie Black kicked the first of four conversions.

Hatchett drove the East inside the West 20 three times in the second ten minutes of the game before hooking up with French for 29 yards and a touchdown.

Little Rock Hall's Frank McGeehe bulled in from four yards out late in the third period following a passing exhibition by Hatchett, and Sheridan's Gary Hines blasted over right tackle for the fourth East touchdown with about ten minutes left in the game.

Fittingly, Hatchett and French, shared the award as the game's outstanding back.

Schollander Is Star of Swim Meet

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Most of America's brilliant young aquatic stars who made a record-breaking shambles of the National AAU outdoor swim meet last weekend today were pointed towards an autumn display of their talents in Japan or Europe.

A notable exception is Don Schollander, 1964 Olympic star from Saratoga, Calif., who smashed one world record — seven world marks, existing or pending, fell in all — and anchored a world record-matching 800-meter free style relay victory.

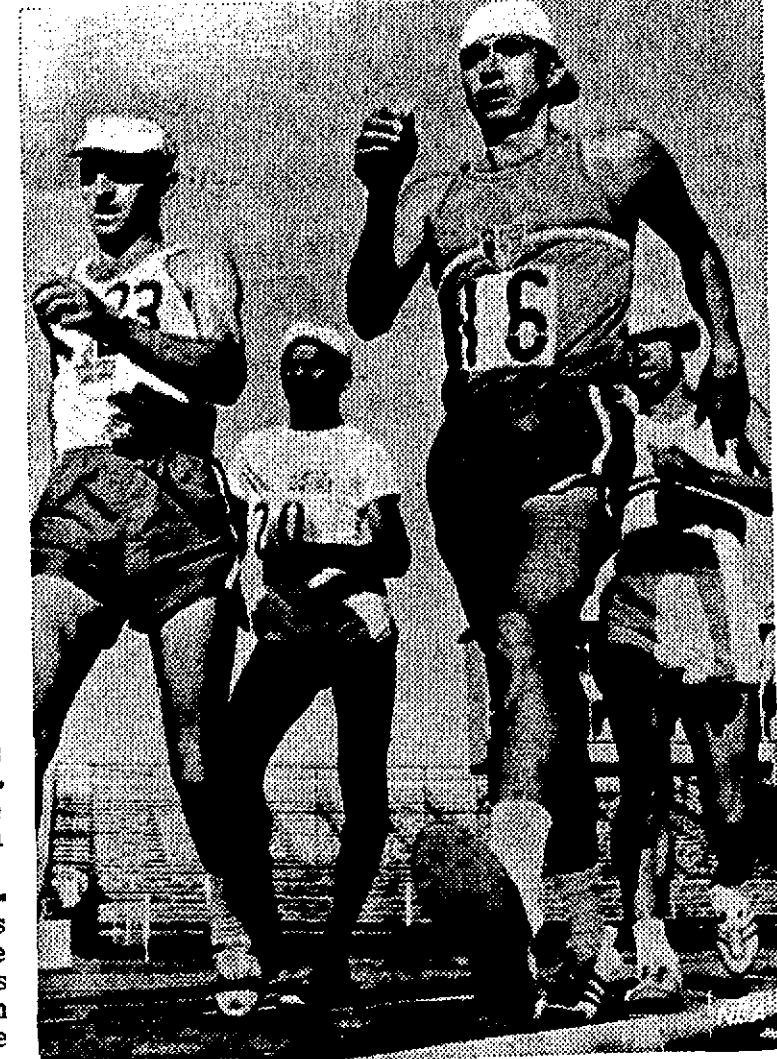

Because of prior commitments, Schollander was not included on the 19-man squad named for the World Student Games at Tokyo, Aug. 28-Sept. 5, or the eight-man unit visiting England and West Germany Sept. 27-Oct. 9.

Sensational Mark Spitz, 17, Santa Clara, Calif., who again broke listed world records in the 100 and 200-meter butterfly in the three-day AAU meet, is too young for the Tokyo Games.

But the USA's brightest swim hope for the 1968 Olympic in Mexico City is on the team touring England and West Germany.

Schollander; Spitz; breaststroke star Ken Merten of Palmdale, Calif.; backstroker Charles Hickcox, Phoenix, Ariz., and diver Keith Russell of Mesa, Ariz., all were double winners in the AAU meet in which seven American marks and 10 meet AAU marks also were shattered.

Little Rock Legion Team State Champs

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP) — Little Rock battled back from a three-run deficit in the fourth inning and shelled Newport 15-6 to win the state American Legion baseball tournament here Sunday.

Newport forged into a 6-3 lead with four runs in the top of the fourth off a single by Roy Drew and four Little Rock errors, but Little Rock blew it open during the bottom of the inning.

Paul Johnson and Johnny Thomas scored on singles by Willie Jones and Jimmy Nosari, then Bill Brooks singled home Jones. Jim Henry clouted a 350-foot homer to left center for three more runs, giving Little Rock the lead it never relinquished.

Little Rock shutout Newport the rest of the way, while tallying two runs in the sixth and four more in the eighth.

J. T. Bradberry was the winner.

style) of Arcadia, Calif., Peter Williams of Michigan State (400 individual medley), and Mike Burton of Carmichael, Calif. (1,500-meter free style) also are included in the Tokyo-bound group.

Burton and Stanford's Mike Buckingham figured in two great Sunday world record performances.

Burton slashed 7.5 seconds from his own world 1,500-meter record with a 16:34.1 clocking and, en route, broke the existing world 800-meter mark with an 8:46.6 time.

Buckingham not only turned back a bid for a triple by the phenomenal Spitz in the 200-meter individual medley, but also sliced more than a second from his own world record with a 2:11.3 victory.

The closing day's session at the new Rehm Pool in suburban Oak Park, also produced a surprising platform diving victory for Russell, who won the three-meter title Saturday, and a meet record of 3:59 for the Santa Clara, Calif., Swim Club's 400 medley relay team. The unit featured Spitz in the butterfly leg and Schollander in the free style leg.

Schollander, who failed in a try for his third straight AAU triple, losing badly in a 400 free style defense, added the 100-meter title Sunday to the 200-meter crown he took Saturday with a sparkling world record time of 1:55.7.

The Santa Clara Swim Club, coached by George Haines — named last weekend as the U.S. swim coach for the 1968 Olympics — successfully defended its AAU team title with a walkaway 208 points.

Spitz contributed 24 points and Schollander 21 to the Santa Clara Club's triumph.

Watts Hot, West Beats East Cagers

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The West had three things going for it in the High School All-Star basketball game Saturday night. The West was quicker than the East, more aggressive on the backboards and had Harrison's Donnie Watts in the lineup.

This, in addition to the East's inability to hit from the free throw line, gave the West a 94-84 victory.

The 6-foot-5 Watts, who can play inside or outside with equal ability, led the West with 18 points and 12 rebounds. Watts scored 14 of his points in the final 20 minutes.

He got scoring help from White Hall's Larry Grisham (16) and Ricky Mobley (11). Harrison's Kipp Wolfe (13), and Camden Fairview's Barry McMahan (11).

West Memphis' 6-foot-8 Joe Sawyer paced the East with 21 points. North Little Rock's Ray Malcom added 16.

The West had only two players, Watts and Grisham, who were listed at 6-foot-5 or better, while the East had five players in the 6-foot-5 or over category. Yet, the East outrebounced the West only 51-47.

The West hit on 34 of 49 from the free throw line for 69 per cent, while the East connected on only 28 of 51 for 54 per cent. The West led by two, 42-40, at the end of the first half with the aid of McMahan's 11 points in the final seven minutes.

The East held a two-point advantage three times during the first six minutes of the second half. Sawyer dropped in one of his nine field goals with 13:35 left and the East led 56-55. Grisham made two free throws 11 seconds later and the East never got even again.

Wolfe, who started out on the second unit, scored five of his points in the final minutes as the West pulled away.

Watts was selected as the game's outstanding player. He won the same award in the Class AA state tournament.

Palmer Is Winner of Akron Meet

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer, the 37-year-old millionaire golfer great, was as happy as a kid Sunday after winning the $100,000 American Golf Classic.

It wasn't the $20,000 check or just another triumph in an ever growing list that had Palmer grinning radiantly.

It was professional victory No. 50, a long sought milestone which was becoming more elusive with every attempt.

The $20,000 vaulted Palmer to $138,189 for the year to keep him well ahead of the pack, boosted his official career earnings to $392,640 and put him over the $1 million mark in unofficial earnings.

"The 50th win has been an obstacle I've been thinking of for a long time," said Palmer, who had not scored a triumph since the Tucson Open last February.

"When you go any length of time without a win, it seems to become all the harder to win again. Right now my game is good but I was becoming cautious of not having won a tournament in many months."

Cautious? Has Arnold Palmer, the great gambler of the links, become cautious?

"No, no, I didn't mean it like that," said Palmer, whose victory was forged in typical fashion. "It just gets you wondering. When I came up to No. 14 and saw the pin placement in the back corner, I wondered if I could still make that shot."

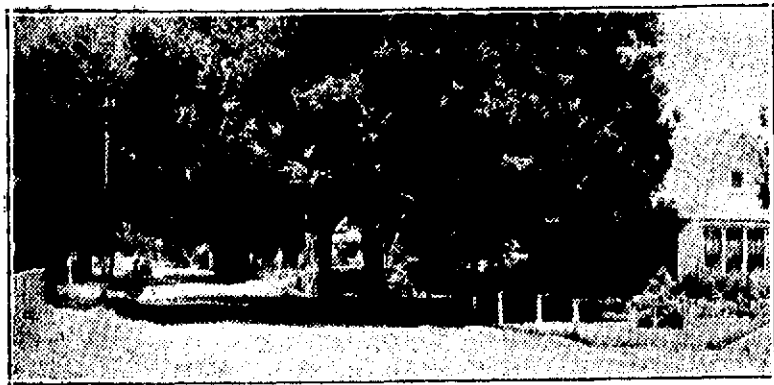

Palmer not only attempted but made the shot only to miss a birdie putt by inches.

He started the final round Sunday tied with Jack Nicklaus, one stroke behind a relatively unknown trio of leaders—Jack McGowan, Allan Henning and Kermit Zarley.

Doug Sanders, who was in the running until he bogeyed No. 14, finished with a one-under par 34-35-69 and a 279 total to take second money of $12,000.</

Old Lewisville

from Shreveport, La., as this was the nearest water town or rail either.

When the Cotton Belt railroad went through it left Lewisville about two miles to the north. The Guionians put up a sawmill on this line and it became the town of Stamps.

Shortly after the building of the railroad a man from Lewisville built a little store down on the railroad, never dreaming that soon the whole town of Lewisville was to move to him. From then on, people began moving and settling around this little spot until the people in Old Town took a vote. By this vote it was decided to move the entire town to the railroad. This was known as New Lewisville, and the other as Old Town, until eventually the "New" was dropped and now it is just "Lewisville."

When the new courthouse was built the people used the old building in Old Town for a school house. Mr. Yocom thinks that Miss Sadie Brown was a teacher in the Old Town. It is also thought that Tillman Parks taught here before he left to finish his training.

Among the early settlers of Lewisville, the following names stand out: the Moores, ancestors of Henry Moore, who held some public office during the early history of the town. Then there were the Cooks, Kitchens, and Wades, all prominent in the development of the county.

Mr. Yocom related a story that was told on Tillman Parks by his friend, the late Morticia Brown. These two boys used to gather all the kids in the surrounding neighborhood, white and negro alike, and go to an old pine field where they would hold a "camp meeting." Morticia would be the leader and Tillman would do the preaching. And such a time as this bunch would have! Those who remember it still laugh when they recall it. Mr. Yocom recalls that when the mail used to go through by horseback there was a little house then known as the Mail Stop, half way between Lewisville and Spring Hill. However, this was later done away with.

He also thinks that the house, which used to be known as the best constructed house in Old Lewisville, is still standing. This old place was built of hewn logs, boxed in and weather-boarded on the outside, and painted. Mr. Yocom's uncle said this was an old house when he went there in 1841.

This section of the country has its story of buried treasure also, and has been the scene of treasure hunts from the early days of the county. A man named Battle, for whom Battlefield is named, came to this place and settled it. No one ever knew anything more about him, except that he had no near relatives, nor did they even know his other name. He eventually fell ill and the people of the neighborhood would take turns caring for him. One day while Mr. Yocom's uncle was with him he seemed much better, and, calling the man to his bed, told him that he had quite a sum of money buried beneath a large hickory tree in his back yard. Just at this time another man went on duty and when Mr. Yocom returned Battle was dead.

Of course the story spread and people dug all over the place. Apparently they were all unsuccessful. One day some gypsies or campers came through the country and stopped near this old spot. While no one ever saw them digging, after they left people found a deep hole with an imprint, as though a pot had been buried and lifted out. The conclusion was that the wanderers got the buried treasure.

Unlike the other little communities further north that faded with the coming of the railroads, Lewisville has held its own and today is a very pretty town.

The Yorubas of Nigeria do not permit burials until debts of the dead have been paid.

Letter Shows Rivalry of 1870 Cotton Merchants

The rivalry of cotton buyers in snapping up the staple that came to Shreveport from the Dooley's Ferry and Fulton country in 1870 is shown by the following letter, written to a friend in an off-moment by "Gus" Guynemer, secretary of Colonel Calvin M. Hervey:

"Dear Jake: I have not answered your several favors, really for the want of subject. I am now gratified to inform you that matters here are gradually brightening up, and must admit, had I the right kind of stock, could bring about a happy result, but in the absence of actual necessities I am sometimes considerably strained. "Cotton comes in slowly, and you can imagine a lot of buzzards around a carcass, whenever a wagon rolls in town with cotton. The sight is disgusting and the consequence is that cotton sells here for nearly at N. O. prices. I hope to pick some of them up after a while. Must wait on time with patience. "Gus."

In Grassy Lake, Cypress Swamp, Alligators Find True Paradise

Hempstead county is well known for the large alligators and other reptiles found here.

The swamps and bayous in the southern and western part of the county offer an excellent habitat for the big saurians and, if proper protection is given them, they can offer thrilling experiences to the sportsmen who occasionally go after big game.

Prior to the last five or six years alligators were always hunted with guns, and unless they were wanted for exhibition purposes they were killed and thrown away; only rarely was their skin preserved.

Now, however, lasses have become popular and have proven much more thrilling in the capture of these big brutes than the use of guns. Not only does the lass give the gator a sporting chance, but if there is no demand for him the prey may be turned loose a wiser and more wily saurian to offer sport for another hunt.

A Sturdy Fighter
The alligator, while not as vicious as the African crocodile, can prove himself a good fighter—especially in the water when he is in deep water. The gator uses his tail as his main weapon, both in fighting and in securing prey. He can float like a submarine along the bank until his intended victim comes to the water; then he will turn himself sideways and knock the animal into his jaws. He will attack a boat in the same manner, battering it to pieces with his tail. However, he will only do this upon provocation, as he is usually indifferent to man unless molested. The saurians have been known to float along in the water where fishermen were and never pay any attention to them.

Hibernating before the first cold spell in the autumn, the alligator emerges late in May or early in June hungry and vicious from his long nap. June is the mating month and alligators are more vicious than at any other time.

The alligator usually builds her nest at some distance from the home water, by scraping together sticks, brush and trash, sometimes as much as four feet high. After the eggs are laid the alligator leaves, returning when it is time for them to hatch. Then if the nest is not near enough to the water for the young ones to crawl to it, the mother swallows them and carries them to the water. D. Johnson says he has seen an alligator swallow its young when they were a foot and a half long. The alligator will usually defend its nest should any one get near it.

Alligators are hunted at night, as they stay up in the buck-brush or on the banks or dens during the day and come out to do their hunting at night. For this reason it is necessary to have a large flat-bottom boat, equipped with a powerful spotlight to shine their eyes. Their eyes glow like live coals when the light shines on them. The alligator floats with his entire body submerged but his eyes and nostrils.

Catching 'Em Alive
John Owen, of Hope, was one of the first alligator hunters to bring 'em alive. He constructed a lassie by taking a big handle and forming a wire loop at one end of it with a rope attached to pull it taut. After shining a light in the gator's eyes the hunting party eases the boat up to the saurian and the nose is slipped over his head—and the fun begins.

John told the author that on one hunt they lassoed a big alligator the old fellow made straight for the boat. John said at this state of affairs the rest of the party quickly decided it was his gator and they would not interfere. Reaching the boat the gator grabbed the side of the craft, shutting the wood as his jaws snapped together, working the boat clear of the brute the men were able to get the gator closer to the bank to allow water where they could handle him to advantage. By that time he was so exhausted the party worked ropes around him and towed him in. Nearly all of the big 'gators at the Hot Springs farm were captured at Grassy Lake and Lower Red Lake. There were a number of saurians in Clear Lake at one time, but these have nearly all disappeared.

One man killed an alligator 14 feet long in his cotton field. The old gator opened his mouth to fight and the man ran a shot gun in it to keep it open. When the alligator brought his jaws together he bent the gun barrel as if it had been tin. Sportsmen everywhere, however, are hoping that proper measures will be taken to protect this old "Monarch of the Swamps."

"Raft" a River Threat

Historic for all Red river operators is the memory of the "Raft," a vast collection of driftwood which at times threatened stoppage of navigation—apparently at a point between Garland City and Dooley's Ferry.

Colonel Hervey's office record tells in clipped business English of the "Raft" effect on commerce. The price of cotton, shipped downstream, and the price of sugar and other imported groceries, shipped upstream—alike depended on the whim of this treacherous floating mass of river debris.

Action to clear up the "Raft," restoring safe navigation to the Red, was pending in 1870-71 both in the Arkansas legislature and the federal congress.

We have the following office entry, written in Colonel Hervey's own hand ("Gus" Guynemer apparently being absent for the moment):

January 10, 1871.

"Capt. W. D. Wiley (unaddressed):

"Dear Sir: You will be surprised to learn I am yet detained here but will leave tomorrow. Will stop in New Orleans two or three days to get memorial. The Arkansas legislature is disposed to do something handsome for our enterprise.

"Hope you will not press things too fast up there. I will be on in a few days. Everything working well."

Three days later Colonel Hervey dictated the following letter in his assistant's handwriting:

January 13, 1871.

"Hon. Anthony A. C. Rogers

"Washington, D. C.

"I leave for Washington this afternoon.

"Take no action in the Raft matter until I arrive."

There is a dramatic touch to the next entry—the colonel being absent on his legislative mission in Washington, D. C., his assistant advises a customer in Washington, Hempstead county, Arkansas, that three steamers loaded with goods are on their way, having negotiated the perilous trip past the "Raft" in safety:

January 17, 1871.

"Wm. Moss, Esq.

"Washington, Ark.

"Dear Sir: In reply to yours of the 9th would respectfully remark that the net proceeds of the 4 B-C-R-E-F. sent to F. E. & N. and sold in New York are credited to your acct. here $88.54. The full particulars I am unable to give you because of my having sent you the account sales to which your attention is invited. The steamers George, Frank Morgan, and Lightest are on their way above the Raft. Whether they will succeed in getting through or not I am unable to say—but every effort possible is being brought to bear to the effect of navigating to Fulton and above if at all possible. Col. Hervey left for Washington City on 13th in the interest of the Raft. Yours very respectfully,

"C. M. Hervey

"Per: A. Guynemer."

Mrs. Jones: "Look, dear, how picturesque the Browns are bringing in a Yule log."

Mr. Jones: "Yule log me eye, that's Brown."

boats up the river; however, he isn't sure.

He recalled that at one time Fulton was a big lumber town and, being both a river and rail center, could handle this article of commerce to advantage. He also mentioned that at one time Fulton had a negro postmaster, a negro on the school board, one on the council, a negro constable, and two negro justices of the peace. Mr. Bryant says that Captain Wheeler, an old river man, was the only white Republican, and he sided with the Democrats.

Talbot Field's Story

We are indebted to Talbot Field, of Hope, for the following interesting story connected with the history of Fulton:

Mr. Field tells of the adventures that befell one of the pioneer families of Fulton. The story goes back to the early 19th century, prior to the gold rush of '49.

Meredith Walton Edwards, Sr., married Martha Propps. He died in 1865 and is buried at Fulton, Ark. His widow then moved to Rondo, Ark. To be near other members of the family. Their son, Meredith Walton Edwards, joined the Confederate forces while at Fulton. He married Mattie M. Driess of Brinlee Springs, Ark. One of his daughters, Cora Edwards, lives at the family residence.

Meredith Walton Edwards, Sr., had a son named Thomas Jefferson Edwards who married Miss Emily Holloman Kinworthy. This young couple decided to try their fortunes in the West, and joined the Forty-Niners in the gold rush to California.

While in California a son was born to Thomas Jefferson Edwards and his wife, and they named the baby William Burton Edwards. The mother passed away. Shortly after the mother died, the young father took his tiny son, William Burton, and started back to Fulton by ship. While the ship was on route around Cape Horn, South America, it was wrecked. Thomas J. Edwards and his son with part of the crew escaping in a boat.

Then began a siege of terror which was to endure until the journey was completed. The boat was adrift for many days. Food and water gave out and this condition persisted until the remaining members of the unfortunate ship were desperate. One night Mr. Edwards overheard the men plotting to eat the baby unless something else turned up. It is not known to how this was averted, but the drifting boat of castaways was finally rescued, enabling Mr. Edwards to start overland with his son to Fulton.

They Return Home

Following days of untold hardship the father and son reached their destination and the baby, William Burton, was given to his grandmother,

Youngest Son Ran Away to the War

This Is Story of Hugh Blevins, Yankees, and a Cherished Ring

By Myra Roberson Hamby

At the beginning of the Civil war, in the northern part of Hempstead county, where the present town of Blevins now thrives, there lived a valorous and determined lad named Hugh Armstrong Blevins, Jr.

The old house where he lived with his parents, sisters, and brothers still stands after silently reviewing the pageant of history parade past for over a hundred years.

When his two older brothers, John and Armstrong, were leaving for the war, Hugh announced his intentions of going with them. All the family protested saying, "You must remain here. We need you, and you're just a boy." (At this time he was only fifteen years old.)

The night after his brothers had ridden away in the morning thinking they had convinced their brother his place was at home, young Hugh crept into the barn, stole the best mule his father owned and rode away to overtake his brothers.

After riding all night and all the next day, he finally overtook the regiment of his older brothers. Surprised and dismayed, again John and Armstrong tried threats, arguments, and entreaties to convince Hugh his duty was to return to his parents.

But Hugh said, "If you won't let me stay here I'll join another regiment for I'm going to fight the Yankees!"

When they realized he could not be swayed from his original intentions, they consented for him to enlist with them.

Some time after his enlistment, he was wounded in battle—shot through the chest. He lay bleeding on the bank of a brook, his blood where it who was then living at Fulton.

William Burton grew to manhood and married Miss Virginia Gilliam.

A son of this marriage is Thomas Jefferson Edwards, of Little Rock, and a daughter, Miss Fannie Edwards, married George Vaughn, of the Law Department of the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville.

Meredith Walton Edwards, Sr., who by the way, was a son of William Edwards of Revolutionary history, was a brother of Larkin Edwards, an interpreter and counselor of the Caddo Indians in Louisiana. These Caddo acres of land flowed into the stream turning the water crimson, certain he was dying. Hugh heard some one say, "Well, I do declare, just a boy!" Opening his eyes he saw a big, rough-appearing Yankee looking down at him and saw two big tears roll down the Yankee's cheeks.

Indians gave Larkin Edwards 640 acres of land which he afterward sold it to the Shreveport Land company.

When Hugh saw those tears, he thought, "I can trust that man." So he told the Yankee, "I'm going to die, and I have a ring, a watch, and a derring that I want my mother to have. Would you try to get them to her?"

And the Yankee replied, "Yes, son, I'll try!"

Just after Hugh had given the ring, watch, and derring to the Yankee the hospital wagon, picking up the wounded, arrived, and he was placed in the wagon, four other wounded soldiers were piled on him, and they were carried to the hospital. Miraculously, he lived and returned home to find the ring, the watch, and the derring his mother's treasured keepsakes.

And today, I, a great, great, niece, cherish this same ring, a putta-perchee ring with the initials H. A. B. studded in gold, as a treasured keepsake—a tangible reminder of the bravery and courage of Hugh A. Blevins, Jr.

Two old farmers met on a country road one very hot July day. "Fretty hot, ain't it, Si?" "Reckon 'tis fim. I'd say we were again 'thave a thaw of 'twasn't fer one thing."

"What's that, Si?"

"Want, there ain't nothing froze."

Little Susie (to her small brother):

"I heard papa calling you a while ago."

Brother: "What did he say, Robert or Bobby?"

Sister: "He said Robert."

Brother: "Then I guess I'd better go and see what he wants."

Comes to Colombia

The big white ship moored since February in the harbor of Cartagena, Colombia, is—just as its name implies—"hope" for hundreds of people needing medical help and education in a nation sorely lacking in both. Staffed by 140 American medical personnel serving without pay or for token salaries, the ship, supported by private donations, has stopped in various ports for the past seven years, offering medical service at the invitation of the host country.

American and Colombian physicians share their techniques aboard the SS Hope, as shown at left. A medical library is also available aboard the ship for use by young medical students. Above, hope shows in the faces of Colombian men and women who gather at the gates of the clinic, as word of the ship spreads throughout the countryside.

Just drive to the second traffic light. Turn left and then right. No. You'd better go to the fourth traffic light. Oh! You can't get there from here.' There is no good way to get to six no-trump and my guess is that six diamonds bid and made turned out to be a good score."

Jim: "It was. It seems that no one else in the field reached that spot. Some did not get to a slam at all. A couple of others reached seven and the failure of the spade finesse brought them down with a crash."

Oswald: "I suppose we could improvise and show how to land at six no-trump. Why should we? Bridge is not an exact science and never will be until you can see all 52 cards during the bidding. I like the bidding in the box except for West's rather pointless and dangerous one heart bid. This gave North a chance to cue bid and to cue bid a second time to show that he really meant the first one. Then South did well to start proceedings by rebidding his diamond suit. This made it obvious that his later bids were ace-showing."

THE WELL CHILD

Keep Your Baby Free Of Irritating Rashes

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Good care of your baby's tender skin helps to prevent rashes. Mothers often contribute to their baby's skin troubles by putting too many clothes on him, especially in warm weather. In your desire to protect your baby from drafts, don't forget that he needs some circulation of air around his skin. Also a room that is a little cool is better for both his skin and his general metabolism than a room that is too warm.

Don't dress your baby in nonporous clothing with tight elastic bands. During his nap put a knitted soaker over his diaper rather than rubber pants. This will take up excess moisture and still allow air to reach his skin. If you use a nonporous sheet or mattress cover, always place an absorbent quilted pad beneath this and the baby to soak up excessive moisture.

The chief means of preventing skin problems is to keep your baby's skin clean. If you enjoy giving him his bath he will sense your enjoyment and look forward to it, especially if he has certain toys he can play with only at that time.

Whether you sponge or tub your baby, get everything you will need within easy reach before you start the bath. If, after you have starved, you find that you have forgotten something, take the baby with you. It is unsafe to leave him alone in the bath for even a few seconds.

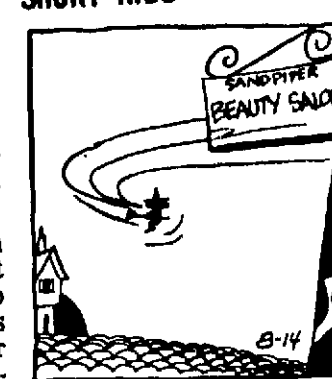

Use a cornstarch base bath powder in the folds of your baby's skin after you dry him. This will help to keep the skin dry. It is more absorbent than talcum powder and doesn't form beads in the skin folds. Don't shake the powder on him directly but pour or sprinkle it on your hand then apply it gently so he won't inhale the dust.

Proper laundering of your baby's clothes is important in the prevention of skin irritations. Diapers should be treated with an antiseptic rinse. Never use boric acid for this purpose. The rinse will prevent the formation of ammonia in diapers up to 15 hours after they become soiled. If you use a diaper service, choose one that offers this kind of added protection.

On warm bright days expose your baby to the sun but protect his face and limit the exposure to two minutes on the first day. After that you can increase the exposure but there is nothing to be gained by extending the sun bath to more than 10 or 12 minutes a day.

Alex H. WashburnA Silver Note —
It's the Silver
Not in Your Money

Just a note to let you know how much I enjoy reading your editorials each day. It is nice to see a paper such as yours that does some thinking rather than space-filling," writes Jack Braunagel, Route Two, Box 65-N, Hot Springs, Ark. 71901.

Mr. Braunagel heads the Jay D. Bee Amusement Co., operators of Hope's Saenger theater and Dixie-drive-in.

"I am using your recent editorials on inflation and the devaluation of our money in speeches at this subject I make at service clubs in the state. Last fall I made a speech at the Hope Rotary club that warned of the very thing your editorial told — the loss of value of the money in savings that those of us who have worked all our lives have built up. On the contrary, and — the government just makes another mistake trying to cover up the last one—for example—

"The start of the silver shortage was the furor and sentiment to do something for Kennedy—and instead of making a commemorative coin, such as has been done many times, which the government would sell at a profit—it quickly passed a special bill changing the design of the Franklin half-dollar in 1964 to the Kennedy.

"During 1964 as many Kennedy halves were minted as the total of all Franklins from 1948 to 1963 —and these halves had 44c silver in them—and even with this, half-dollars faded from circulation.

"This hurried the silver shortage—then came the 'clad coins' which replace silver coinage as fast as possible so the price of silver can be raised from a $1.29 per troy ounce (silver had sold on the black market as high as $2 overseas). Now over 50 per cent of the quarters and dimes in circulation are 'clad coins'—and practically all the halves—being combinations of silver and copper, 22c silver against previous 44c for halves.

"Now the government has rescinded its promise to pay silver for silver certificates and made available 160 million or so dollars in silver by just stating they feel that this many silver certificates have been destroyed. All other silver certificates can only be redeemed in silver at $1.29 per ounce until next June—the promise to pay in silver is just tossed away with the scratch of a pen. Now the big dealers are paying $1.25 each for any type paper silver certificate and will cash it in for silver and await the price rise as all our silver coins are picked up."

Thanks, Jack, for a good letter. You know your silver, being an authority on coins and coin-collecting.

Incidentally, this morning's Wall Street Journal reported that the market in silver now stands at $1.82 per troy ounce—and of course it's going higher still, and along with it higher prices for photographic film and paper and other commercial products in which silver is a basic material.

I should explain that silver is basic to photography because silver salts have the property of turning black when exposed to light—so without silver there would be no photographs.

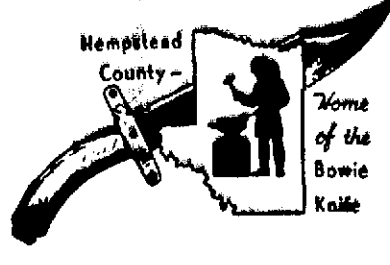

If I say something nice about the picture now playing at Jack's Saenger theater I assure it isn't by prearrangement. When your editor goes to the theater it usually is for the purpose of reviewing a specific film. Sunday night I saw "The War Wagon" with John Wayne and Kirk Douglas—and it's a top-ranking Western.

The featured attraction is a tank-like horse-drawn vehicle with a monitor-style turret in which is mounted the first automatic cannon in history—the Gatling Gun. It tore up the Indians—until they tore up the gun. Film plays through this Monday night.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. bombing within 10 miles of Red China detonated new congressional furor over the Vietnam war.

"I think it's very dangerous and extremely stupid," said Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. But Senate preparedness subcommittee chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., said the broadened bombing of North Vietnam reflects a more-pressure philosophy which he supports.

The new level of bombing came on the eve of Senate debate on President Johnson's foreign aid program. Debate opening today already had been expected to bring fresh attacks on Johnson policies in Vietnam.

Bears Kill Two Girls

Lightning Is Blamed

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP) — The superintendent of Glacier National Park says lightning may have goaded two grizzly bears into killing two 19-year-old girls early Sunday as they slept in sleeping bags in this rugged wilderness.

Killed in the separate incidents 20 miles apart in the mountainous park on the Montana-Canada border were Julie Helgeson of Albert Lea, Minn., and Michele Koons of San Diego, Calif. Roy Ducat, 18, of Perrysburg, Ohio, was seriously injured by the bear that killed Miss Helgeson.

Forest rangers pressed a search for the killer animals. Park Supt. Keith Neilson said his only theory on the attacks was that lightning strikes in the park alarmed the normally shy, near-sighted grizzlies into attacking.

Lightning started 14 forest fires in the park Saturday and Sunday. More than 400 firefighters tried to control them. The park has had no rain since June.

"There seems to be an association between the lightning and the attacks," Neilson said, "but we can't be sure. There is no scarcity of natural food and the grizzly is an unusually shy animal. It's strange for them to

A simulated Presidential Cabinet meeting to discuss the present situation in Vietnam was held at the Hope Rotary Club luncheon meeting at the Town and Country on August 11. With program chairman Bob Willhite in charge, there was good participation.

It was the general consensus of opinion that our country stop fighting a No Win War and either make a unified effort to win or get out. This was further strengthened by statements of two guests, Webb Laseter, III, recently returned from Vietnam, and Bob Moers, a veteran of the Korean conflict.

Other guests at the meeting included Earl Regains, Holland, Mich.; Lowell Little, Salem, Ind.; Jim Polsen, Crossville, Tenn. HAMMOND, La. (AP) — A group of Negroes demanding, "we want beer!" shot into a crowd of whites hawking their way to a tavern Sunday night, wounding five white men, state police said.

State police and sheriff's deputies raided Negro bars at Covington, 20 miles from here, before dawn today and arrested 12 Negro men and women.

Col. Thomas D. Burbank, state director of public safety, rushed from Baton Rouge and said several of those jailed had taken part Sunday in the Bogalusa civil rights "liberation march" which stopped here for the night en route to the state capital.

"But they haven't been regular marchers," said Sheriff Tom Sanders of Tangipahoa Parish. "I'd say they were curiosity marchers."

A. Z. Young, leader of the march, denied any of his followers were involved. He said, "All of our people were here."

The wounded men were hospitalized in Hammond. Authorities at the hospital refused to give their condition.

Col. Ray Heard of the state Crime Laboratory gave paraffin tests to the arrested Negroes, to determine if any had fired weapons recently.

Sixty-five state troopers before purchasing their books, Earl D. Downs announced.

In the past 24 hours police report arresting two for license violations, two for assault with deadly weapons and one driving while intoxicated. Chief Alvin Willis reports the accident toll so far this year has reached 195 with 41 persons being injured.

Three separate traffic accidents killed three persons and injured eight others in Arkansas during the weekend period from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Sunday.

Dead were Jessie Hughes, 19, of Fayetteville; James Edward Waldrum, 82, of Harmony Hill (Clark County), and Miller A. Green, 48, of Gurdon (Clark County).

Hughes was injured fatally Saturday when the car in which he was a passenger skidded broadside into the path of an auto at Fayetteville.

The car was driven by Tyrone G. Vinson, 21, of Fayetteville, who was treated at a hospital and released.

Two other passengers, Jerry Mason, 21, of Elkins (Washington County) and Kenneth Casebolt, 16, of Fayetteville, were hospitalized in good condition.

The driver of the other car, Rennard Strickland, 27, of Fayetteville, a speech instructor at the University of Arkansas, and his two passengers were treated and released.

Waldrum was fatally injured Saturday when a southbound auto driven by Wilma Lopez of DePauw, Ind., struck his northbound pickup truck as he was making a left turn off U.S. 67, about two miles north of Arkadelphia.

State Trooper C. W. Ferguson said the Lopez woman and her passenger, Darlene Satterfield, also of DePauw, were injured seriously.

Green was driving west on Arkansas 24 Friday when his auto veered across the center line on a curve about 14 miles east of Prescott and struck the rear of a trailer being towed by a pickup truck driven by William H. Todd of Camden.

State Trooper Bob Cockman said Todd was not injured.

Planes Hit
Closer to China Border

By GEORGE ESPER

associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes struck for the second straight day today at targets just 10 miles from Red China's border, closer to China than the air raids on North Vietnam ever had come before Sunday, the U.S. Command said.

Their attacks were along the major railroad from Red China to Hanoi.

Navy A6 Intruders and A4 Skyhawks from the carrier Constellation in the Tonkin Gulf raked the Lang Son railroad bypass bridge 63 miles north of Hanoi. Pilots reported dropping the southern span of the 360-foot, four-span structure.

A U.S. military spokesman said the bridge is half a mile east of the Lang Son railroad and highway bridge which was knocked out in raids near the Chinese border Sunday.

The Navy said the bridge was one of two bypass bridges being built by the North Vietnamese at Lang Son to link with the major rail line.

Other Navy pilots from the Constellation hammered a rail siding south of Lang Son and pilots said they cut the tracks in several places.

The pilots reported they encountered only light antiaircraft fire.

No planes were reported lost in the latest raids, but the U.S. Command announced that in Saturday's 151 attacks on the North, an F105 Thunderchief and an RF4C reconnaissance plane were shot down by ground fire. All three crewmen were listed as missing.

This brought to 641 the total of announced U.S. warplane losses over North Vietnam.

Elements of the 1st Brigade of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division, starting Operation Benton, ran into a withering barrage of small arms, automatic weapons, mortar and artillery fire from 100 to 150 Communist troops in a battle that raged from Sunday night until nearly dawn today.

The paratroopers said they counted 35 enemy dead on the battlefield southwest of coastal Tam Ky, about 340 miles northeast of Saigon. Two paratroopers were killed and 19 wounded. The U.S. troops also reported capturing 18 enemy weapons.

Another unit of the brigade suffered 12 wounded Sunday night in a 60mm mortar barrage fired by guerrillas.

About 40 miles to the north, Vietnamese rangers sweeping the ridges where they had battled an estimated 1,000 North Vietnamese regulars for two days west of Tam Ky said today they had killed 156 enemy soldiers and captured 45 weapons.

They reported they had suffered moderate casualties in the initial engagement Saturday. Two reinforcing battalions reported light casualties.

Romney's Push for Nomination Continues

By H.L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP) — Gov. George Romney's final push for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination appeared to be under way today following a weekend meeting with three of his major supporters.

The weekend was billed as time of rest and relaxation and Romney and his guests, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Rhode Island Gov. John Chafee, and former Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton, left Sunday still insisting there had been little serious political discussion.

But at a news conference Saturday, the three for the first time together emphatically endorsed Romney, and said they would work for his nomination. There also appeared a new tone to Romney's news conferences, a tone that indicated to some there is no longer any question that Romney will seek the nomination, although he has yet to formally announce his candidacy.

None of the dozen newsmen who trailed the governors to this island resort, which can be reached only by plane or boat in daylight hours, asked the governor when or if he would announce.

Romney has routinely turned aside that question at every news conference since the 59-year-old governor won a landslide re-election last November and became a frontrunner for the nomination.

The questions and answers seemed to take for granted Romney's intention to seek the nomination.

"Already the three of us share deeply a sense of dedication to help Gov. Romney win the nomination," Rockefeller said as he sat with the other three on the veranda of the governor's 3-story, 20-room, white-frame mansion overlooking the broad Straits of Mackinac.

Chafee has endorsed Romney in the past as has Rockefeller, but Scranton, who left office in January after the four-year term that Pennsylvania governors are limited to, has been pretty much of a fence-sitter. Scranton made an attempt to wrest the 1964 nomination from Barry Goldwater but got no public support from Romney, who was widely criticized at the time for his aloofness.

Scranton beamed his approval, however, of Rockefeller's statement as did Chafee.

Rockefeller was asked about the possibility of his trying for the vice presidential spot on a Romney ticket.

"That's not my responsibility," he said. "That's George's."

Romney interjected, "It's a little premature to think of that."

But Romney added, "We are obviously going to need tremendous talent and leadership. The Republican party has that. Just look at the abundance of Republican governors."

"There is an abundance of Republican talent and ability all across the country, and of course there are many men in Congress too."

The exact role that Rockefeller and Scranton are playing in the Romney drive is unclear. The meeting here was planned only three days ago and seemed to be more of an effort to bring back in the public eye the Romney drive, somewhat sidetracked by a long but successful legislative battle for state fiscal reform and riots that devastated Detroit and spread across Michigan.

Problem of Retired Is How to Spend That Extra 25,000 Hours

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail: If the average man, instead of retiring at 65, worked on until death he would spend an additional 25,000 hours on the job. The big problem of the retired man is how to spend those free 25,000 hours happily.

The human animal is the only one that consciously goes on a diet. Among those with the biggest appetites are the elephant which can eat up to 95 pounds of food daily, the hippopotamus 49 pounds, the milk cow 45 pounds, and the camel 38.

The hot dog has become an international delicacy. We prefer all-beef frankfurters, but in Africa they are made of lamb and antelope, in Finland of reindeer, and in Japan of whale meat. Wives married to college graduates might do well to avoid running the vacuum cleaner while their husbands are in the home. Tests at the University of Michigan found that highly educated people are bothered more by the noise from household appliances than are the uneducated.

Quotable notables: "I have always thought respectable people are scoundrels and I look anxiously at my face every morning for signs of my becoming a scoundrel," Bertrand Russell. It pays to advertise: American Indians used to carve figures on trees to let it be known they sought a squaw.

What is the largest U.S. city in terms of area? You're wrong if you say Los Angeles, which covers 454.8 square miles. The honor is claimed by Oklahoma City. As the result of some 300 annexations, it now sprawls over 631 square miles.

Quip of the week: "It really takes a pretty small man to hide behind his wife's skirts these days," notes John Whyte. Prosperity note: The swimming pool now has become a family status symbol. Of the nation's 725,000 pools, about two-thirds are home-owned.

If you don't spoon down 5½ gallons of ice cream a year, you're below the national average. Vanilla is preferred by 46 per cent, chocolate by nearly 13 per cent, and strawberry by 7 per cent of the consumers. Coffee-flavored ice cream goes

Throne Heir Dunked at a Party

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles, heir to Britain's throne, created quite a splash when he dunked a fully dressed countess at a swimming pool party, the Sunday Express reported.

It was after midnight, some unnamed guests were quoted as saying, Queen Elizabeth II had left the party, and some guests had gone swimming when the aquatic high jinks occurred last weekend.

One guest told the Express that 48-year-old Primrose, Countess Cadogan, came with out a swimsuit.

"Primrose was wearing a blue silk dress. She was running up and down the side of the pool wondering how she could get in," he added.

"Then Prince Charles and another guest, Prince Ali of Musshidabad, gripped her hands and pulled her in with all her clothes on."

Another guest remarked that "Primrose took it all in great fun" and started swimming around.

The party took place at Buckhurst Park, country home of a friend of Prince Philip.

Youth Spends Horrible Day in a Well

By DARRELL CHRISTIAN
WILLIAMSON, W. Va. (AP) — An odd job to earn money for school clothes almost cost 15-year-old Leonard Boyce his life. He climbed into a neighbor's water well on a cleaning project, then faced 24 hours of deadly terror.

Tons of rock and earth collapsed on the youth 14 feet underground Friday evening and it took some 40 rescue workers using shovels, bare hands and earth moving equipment until Saturday evening to pull him free.

"I thought I was a goner for sure," recalled Boyce from his hospital bed here, where he was reported in good condition today after two nights of good sleep.

Boyce, of Parsley's Bottom near this southwestern West Virginia community close to the Kentucky border, was trapped up to his chest and went without food except for some water and hot chocolate during the 24 hours that workers frantically tried to set him free.

Cave-in after cave-in frustrated rescue efforts and for awhile some workers feared the well would collapse and entomb the youth.

After the boy was pulled free the rescue trenches and the well, in the sloping front yard of Willard Howell, were filled in by a bulldozer.

Smiling from his hospital bed, but still able to eat only soft foods, Boyce said "Praying helped pull me through."

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Boyce along with dozens of other relatives and well-wishers visited him Sunday.

Andrews Convicted of Lying

By BILL CRIDER
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A jury convicted Dean Andrews today of lying to a grand jury about a mysterious figure in the alleged New Orleans plot to assassinate President John F. Kennedy.

Guilt on three of five perjury counts, the Criminal Dist. Court jury decided at 1:30 a.m., after deliberating two hours and 40 minutes.

"I really shouldn't complain," said Andrews with a heavy sigh moments before he was hustled off to jail. "If I didn't have bad luck, I wouldn't have any at all."

Defense attorney Harry Burglass immediately announced an appeal will be filed on many points of law.

Judge Frank J. Shea did not set a date for sentencing. Burglass said Andrews, 44, will not be eligible for bond until he has been sentenced. Maximum sentence would be five years.

The case went to the jury before midnight after marathon debate for five days and including a Sunday session—so unusual the judge had to check the law books to see if it was legal.

The trial was before a five-man jury because the charge of perjury is a misdemeanor under Louisiana law. Twelve-member juries are reserved for felony cases.

In final arguments, the state accused Andrews of trying "to play games" with the Orleans Parish grand jury which is probing an alleged assassination plot.

The prosecution said Andrews wound up trapped in lies.

On the contrary, said Burglass, what the state truly indicated to Andrews was: "Tell us what we want to hear, Dean, and then it's all right."

Five counts of perjury against Andrews, a lawyer who once advised Lee Harvey Oswald on minor legal matters, were filed primarily because he said he could not identify Clay L. Shaw as the mysterious Clay Bertrand.

Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison contends that Shaw, 54, a wealthy New Orleans businessman used "Bertrand" as an alias to plot the murder of Kennedy.

The Warren Commission said Oswald acted alone in the 1963 assassination at Dallas, Tex.

The defense rested its case after playing a voice tape of Andrews' replies to state interrogatories before the grand jury March 16.

"He told them the truth," said Burglass. "But he's got a jivey way of doing it. He told them Clay Shaw was not Clay Bertrand, but they say he lied."

"Most of us live humdrum lives. But something exciting happened to Dean—Bertrand. Up until that time, he didn't have an enemy in the world. He was on TV, he was here, he was there. He got swirled up into something a lot bigger than anything he had ever dreamed of."

A desire for attention, said Asst. Dist. Atty. James Alcock, is not an excuse for lying to the grand jury trying to determine whether there was a conspiracy to kill a president.

Alcock stressed that Andrews, at his second grand jury appearance, identified Bertrand as Eugene Davis, a French Quarter bar owner—and when asked why he hadn't said so before, replied:

"So I lied. So I committed perjury. I don't know what I said."

Royal Pair Attend a Star's Party

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco attended an informal party Saturday night at the home of film star Rock Hudson.

The former Grace Kelly, making her first appearance at a Hollywood party since she left her acting career 11 years ago, wore a full-length Chinese robe. Her husband, in accordance with the invitation's "no ties" instructions, wore an open shirt and slippers.

The party, with a Mexican theme and dancing to two Mexican bands was given by Hudson to honor Carol Burnett on the eve of her new CBS television series.

Among the some 200 guests were Eva Gabor, Lucille Ball, Barbara Stanwyck, Jack Benny, Debbie Reynolds, Milton Berle, Danny Thomas, Polly Bergen, Henry Fonda, James Garner, Samantha Eggar, Barbara Streisand and Ernest Borgnine.

said later, "I don't believe I could have taken it for another night."

She said she was "afraid they would start pulling him out and the whole well would cave in."

Boyce, attempting to climb out of the well, knocked loose a couple of large rocks, that triggered the cave-in, and he was trapped.

Rescue operations were hampered by the loose soil and because he was trapped a little more than halfway down the 21 foot well. Trenches were dug deep alongside the well and Boyce was pulled free from below at 5:07 p.m. Saturday.

May Be Expelled From Britain

LONDON (AP) — All Simbule, Zambian high commissioner who once called Britain a "toothless bulldog," apologized, then did it again last weekend, and was the subject of demands today that he be declared persona non grata and sent home.

"If Britain does not show its sharp teeth in Rhodesia," Simbule declared in Nairobi, "the challenge still stands that the British government is toothless."

Sir Samuel Cunningham, Conservative member of Parliament from Northern Ireland, angrily insisted Simbule be summarily expelled. The Zambian has held his post in London just three weeks.
